

Questions for Conversations

100823

What questions do you have about this week's message?

God's call is both a call to and a call away. What might God be calling you away from (not just sin)?

Where might God be asking you to stretch in your trust quotient?

In verse 2, the text says, ". . . and you will be a blessing." Do you think God is promising that or calling Abram to do that? Who is doing this work?

Where has God met you, and you should "build and altar" or sorts? What prayers has he answered recently or need has he met?

Rob indicated that he thinks there are several calls. What do you think about his ideas?

How might God be calling you deeper into community?

Have we been confusing jobs for callings?

What should/can be done about it?

If Jesus' call to follow him takes us to the cross, what might that look like for you this week?

Prayer Ministry Question

1. Do you see prayer as a spiritual discipline that has to be worked on or more like his definition of prayer "prayer is the conversational part of the most important love relationship in our lives, our love relationship with the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit?
2. If prayer starts with God, then the first order of business as we learn to pray is to listen to God's whispers. How do we do that?
3. Do we pray like we believe something will be different because we prayed?
